

Martin Baumann, Klaus Hock and Wolfram Reiss

Martin Baumann has been professor of Religious Studies at the Faculty of Cultural and Social Sciences since 2001 and prorector for research at the University of Luzern since 2010. He teaches and investigates the fields of migration, religion and social integration; controversies and coexistence in religious pluralism; Diaspora Studies; Hindu and Buddhist traditions in the West. His most recent publication in co-authorship is Integrationspotenziale von Religion und Zivilgesellschaft, Baden-Baden 2016.

Klaus Hock is professor of History of Religion – Religion and Society at the Faculty of Theology at the University of Rostock; Moreover, he has been speaker (2010–2013), respectively deputy-speaker (2006–2013 and again since 2013), of the DFG-Graduate Training Group “Kulturkontakt und Wissenschaftsdiskurs” as well as founding member of the council of the DFG-Graduate Training Group “Deutungsmacht: Religion und Belief Systems in Deutungsmachtkonflikten” (since 2014). His research interests are: religion and transculturation; Christian-Muslim relations in Africa; religion in Africa and African religions, especially African Christianity.

Wolfram Reiss has been professor for the Studies of Religions at the Protestant Faculty of the University of Vienna since 2007. His main research interests are the religions in the Middle East; the impact of immigration on institutions in Europe; recent developments in policy, pedagogy and religions in Egypt and Syria. He edits the series “Application Oriented Studies of Religions” (AORW). Recent publications in this series (2016): Selbstbetrachtung hinter Gittern. Naikan imStrafvollzug in Deutschland und Österreich (AORW 6); Aufstieg und Fall der Muslimbruderschaft 2011–2013 (AORW 8).